The European monasteries are largely enclosed places which are forming an architectural unit in a spiritual context with the church, the buildings and the open spaces. Concerning about new activities in the monastery, it is necessary to create new ideas for developing necessary economic, ecological and technical activities in the future.

In cooperation with students from the Danubian countries and experts from science, administration and the church we were developing new concepts for the monastery of Stift Zwettl in Austria. Within the Intensive program the students were working on projects like regional development, restoring old buildings for new functions and collecting data for future economic activities.

The 'vita nova' project in Zwettl will establish a sustainable support and mobilise authorities and regional actors to a committed and effective involvement for developing new concepts for the monastery. It is also intended to transfer the results to other countries of the Danubian region. As a second step we are working on a follow up project which will take part in Bulgaria.

3. PLANNING OF ACTIVITIES

The University of Natural Resources and Applied Life Sciences in Vienna in cooperation with five universities from Sofia, Beograd, Bratislava, Linz and Weihenstephan were submitting for 2005 till 2008 a project for an Intensive Program (IP) within Erasmus called "VITA NOVA" for developing a sustainable concept in the Stift of Zwettl. Within this international established Erasmus IP the very idea is about sustainable development over unlimited growth, to develop new economic concepts for the future and also to preserve and nurture cultural heritage. In cooperation with students from the Danubian countries and experts from science, administration and the church we were developing new concepts for the monastery of Stift Zwettl in Austria. Within the Intensive program the students were working on projects like regional development, making plans for restoration of old buildings for new functions and collecting datas for future economic activities.

3.1.. Working methods

Within the first phase from 2005 to 2006 the 'Vita Nova' project in Zwettl was establishing a sustainable support for technical and regional projects, to mobilise authorities (Association of the friends of Stift Zwettl) and regional actors (government of Lower Austria) for a committed and effective involvement for developing new concepts for the monastery.

The second phase from 2006 to 2007 will take part again in Stift Zwettl. Within the first phase we were recognizing together with the convent in the monastery Stift Zwettl, two main problems for a future development are necessary to be discussed:

- + The economic perspective of the various activities in the monastery
- + The pastoral activities for young people in the region

We will work with a future search workshop for encouraging an emotional gathering and inter-personal growing of the participants. The common goal is a vision, based on the groups hopes and finally specifying measures what can be done on different problems with priorities on short and long time actions. Therefore we will invite experts from the economic and pedagogical sciences to enable all the participants to better understand their joint position and assuming more responsibility.

Finally the aim of this Vita Nova project within the third phase from 2007 to 2008 will foster a substantial increase of the exchange of this new concept to promote future challenges of intercultural exchange to contribute the compatibility and comparability of our common European cultural tradition.

The scientific preparatory work for the Intensive program is creating a basis for future network of communication. The theoretical concept will be placed at the participants disposal in a proper shape of worksheets and proved scientific material. During the entire project there will be a website inclusive a team workspace and e-learning platform available for the participants. Within the Academia Danubiana we will encourage international study programmes for getting better integration with the neighbouring countries in science and administration. See: www.academia-danubiana.net
